SPORTSMEN'S CORNER

By Bill Chiba

The month of June offers the best fishing in Vermont. Hatches of stoneflies and mayflies are everyday occurrences on Vermont's hundreds of miles of trout streams. Beaver ponds are a very good bet now. The size of the fly is very important now. The large fly will not produce as readily as the size 14 hooks or smaller. Mr. Kehoe, commissioner of the Vermont Fish and Game, recommends that you fish for the large trout after sundown. It is legal to fish after dark for trout in Vermont.

A fishing guide folder will be sent to any interested fisherman requesting one from the Vermont Fish and Game Department, Montpelier. The folder is worth its weight in gold. Every pond and stream is itemed in the brochure, and public right of ways are shown on both streams and ponds.

Littleville

We fished the Littleville Reservoir recently and found it to be a body of water with a tremendous potential for rainbow trout propagation. The trout cannot escape from the impoundment except to go upstream and spawn which is ideal. We caught two large brown trout on the Moose-lock Wobbler, Saturday, and was very pleased over the condition of the fish. The girth was very large for the length of the fish indicating that the feed in the impoundment is there for the trout to thrive on.

A WORD OF WARNING! If you fish the reservoir, please make it a point to bring your rubbish and refuse back home with you. Don't leave it on the banks and in the water. The quickest way to close a body of water that is being planned for human consumption is to litter the area. Let the closing of the Ludlow Reservoir be a warning to you. The important this is to nail the offender when you see him doing it. If every fisherman took it upon himself to police the area like his own back yard, the problem of the slob would be rectified.

Largest River

A feature story on Maine's largest river, the Penobscot, is the lead article in the Spring issue of Maine Fish and Game Magazine. The publication of the Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Game will be mailed to subscribers shortly.

The story on the Penobscot River is the first of a new series on the magazine. From time to time, other Maine rivers will be featured.

Other articles discuss fish screens, boating safety, water chemistry, and cedar cutting and game relationships. Also included are reviews of the 1965 fishing and hunting reasons and a list of the top fish entered in the "The One That Didn't Get Away Club" for 1965.

Information on subscribing to the magazine may be obtained by writing to the Circulation Section, Maine Fish and Game Magazine, Room 600, State Office Building, Augusta, Me.

LITTLE LEAGUE EAST

The first game of the second round of Little League Season found the Bombers victorious over Corvairs, 4-0. All scoring was done in the first three innings. Don Filiault was winning pitcher. Line score:

Bombers	5	6	3
Corvairs	1	5	3

The second game of the double header was also a well pitched game. Tom Davies and Gary Bonavita were locked in a scoreless duel until the last of the fifth when John Davies drove in the only two runs of the game.

Corvairs	3	4	0

Gary Safford and Don Wheeler both turned in good pitching efforts in Thursday's game. A two-run double by John Anderson in the first inning put the Panthers ahead to stay. The Bombers lone run was scored in the sixth inning. Safford became a four-game winner in this contest. Line score:

STORROWTON MUSIC FAIR

New England's most fascinating musical tent theatre in the round Eastern States Exposition Park, West Springfield, Mass.

"Robinson Crusoe" Children's Program

"The Adventures of Robinson Crusoe," a musical adventure freely adapted from Defoe's "Robinson Crusoe" will be the second of the Judy Pixie musicals for children to be presented at Storrowton Music Fair, Saturday at 10:30 a.m.

This musical adventure begins in London in the year 1678 with Mrs. Crusoe waiting at dockside for her son Robinson to return from his first ocean voyage and at the same time fearing her son has been lost at sea as his father was in the battle of the Spanish Main.

There are a number of lovely tunes in this show for children including "Lovely Golden Gold," "The Sailor's Life," "Do It Yourself," "A Perfect Day for a Picnic," "Friday Is Your Name," "Dig You Must," "Missionary Gumbo" and "Don't Ask Me How I Know."

Not only is the musical colorfully performed to capture the attention of the young audience, but it also gives them a musical insight to one of the great literary classics.

This show will be presented one time only at Storrowton Music Fair, Saturday, June 18 at 10:30 a.m.

The second of the scheduled midnight rambles, featuring Ann Corio and her blackbusing "This Was Burlesque" show, will be staged Friday night at Wally Beach's West Springfield Storrowton Music Fair tent theater at midnight Friday.

The show will include all the hilarious and popular skits and songs but also will have a few extras thrown in for the "nocturnal adults" who like to stay up late and get their kicks and laughs at a time when other people are sound asleep.

The midnight ramble show will be staged throughout the sum-

The Blue Tones placed first in the local Battle of Bands held at Mallory Arena recently and later competed in the regional contest in Amherst where they were awarded a trophy. David has competed in national music contests where he was recipient of a trophy for accordion solo and a Presidential Certificate for integrity of purpose and achievement.

mer at Storrowton Music Fair with specially imported nightclub acts from New York following Miss Corio into the popular West Springfield show place on the Eastern States Exposition Park grounds.

The Marvelles, all from Agawam will render sounds of Tijuana Brass with Dave Reed, first trumpet; Ed Morassi, second trumpet; Karl King, sax; Dave Poggi, drums and Ken Goodwin, accordion. Ken has won awards in state accordion contests and local talent programs.

Performing with the Accordionaires recording orchestra will be Norman Avondo on the Cordovox and Joseph Dynia, who placed second in accordion competitions in 1965. Both are from Agawam. Band director, Jayne Slate, invites the public to attend and encourage the youthful players in their musical efforts. Twelve bands are expected to participate in the Music-a-rama.

Department Convention

Mrs. Jane Whalen and Mrs. Pauline Brown represented the Unit at Department Convention last week. They left Springfield with about 30 other county representatives by bus early Thursday morning. The group stopped on the way for breakfast and arrived in time for registration at 10 a.m. Agawam was assigned beach cottage rooms.

At 2 p.m. the session opened with flag ceremonies and a memorial service. Reports were given by the various chairmen, and a booklet will be on file for interested Agawam members. An Agawam High School poppy poster won a Class "C" award. Election of department officers was held that afternoon. Members attended a banquet honoring Mrs. Walter Glenn that evening.

On Friday more committee reports were heard with membership being stressed in the afternoon. Agawam joined the parade of quota units.

On Saturday, a procession of newly-elected officers was a highlight. New department President Mary Muskes stressed the need of chairmen to send in reports of their activities.
